Modern British families

Father leaves for work (1) the morning after breakfast. The children take the bus to school, and mother stays at home cooking and cleaning until father and the kids return home in the evening. This is the traditional picture of a happy family (2) in Britain. But is it true today? The answer is - no! The past twenty years (3) enormous changes in the lives and structures of families in Britain, and the traditional model is no longer true in most cases. The biggest change has been caused (4) divorce. As many as 2 out of 3 marriages now end in divorce, leading to a situation (5) many children live with one parent and only see the other one at weekends or holidays. There has also been a huge rise (6) the number of mothers who work. (7) the large rise in divorces, many women need to work to support themselves and their children. Even when there is no divorce, in many families both parents (8) to work in order to survive. This has caused an increase in childcare facilities. In addition, women are no longer happy to stay at home raising children, and many have careers earning as much as or even more than men. However, these changes have not had a totally negative effect. For women, it is now much easier to have a career and good salary. (9) it is difficult to be a working mother, it has become normal and it's no longer seen as a bad thing for the children. As for children themselves, some argue that modern children grow up to be (10) independent and mature than in the past.
